Catherine Adamsbaum, MD, Professor and Chairman Paediatric Radiology, Bicêtre Hospital AHP, Paris-Sud University (Paris, France)

Caroline Rey Salmon, MD, Paediatrician and Forensic Scientist (Médecin Légiste), Hôtel Dieu Hospital AHP (Paris, France)

This presentation will correlate legal statements by perpetrators with medical documentation and offer insights on dating of the incident. The key points presented will be 1) The high frequency of repeated shaking (50%), probable yet underestimated; 2) The abnormal behavior of children immediately after being shaken and; 3) The role of brain imaging as a strong indicator of "age different" injuries.

Déclarations des auteurs de violences et datation de l'incident : qu'apprenons-nous ?AMPHITHEATRE

Caroline Rey Salmon, MD, Paediatrician and Forensic Scientist (Médecin Légiste), Hôtel Dieu Hospital AHP (Paris, France)

Cette présentation va mettre en parallèle les déclarations à la justice des auteurs de violence et la documentation médicale tout en proposant des pistes pour dater l'incident. Les points-clé seront 1) La fréquence élevée du secouement répété (50%), probablement encore sous-estimée ; 2) Le comportement anormal des enfants dès le secouement et 3) Le rôle de l'imagerie cérébrale dans la mise en évidence de lésions « d'âge différentes ».

Alternative Causation of Retinal HemorrhagesAMPHITHEATRE

Alex V. Levin, MD, MHSc, Chief, Pediatric Ophthalmology and Ocular Genetics, Wills Eye Hospital (Philadelphia, PA, USA)

Retinal hemorrhages can be seen in children from many different etiologies including retinal and systemic disorders. It is critical for physicians to discern these caused from abusive head trauma. In addition to appropriate systemic evaluations and related laboratory and radiologic investigations, detailing the specific types, distribution, number and patterns of retinal hemorrhage can be essential. Although there is no pathognomonic specific retinal finding for abuse, in the context of systemic, laboratory and radiologic findings, certain types and distributions of retinal hemorrhage become more specific for abusive head injury where other patterns of hemorrhagic retinopathy may be nonspecific or diagnostic of other entities unrelated to child abuse.

Autres causes d'hémorragie rétinienneAMPHITHEATRE

Alex V. Levin, MD, MHSc, Chief, Pediatric Ophthalmology and Ocular Genetics, Wills Eye Hospital (Philadelphia, PA, USA)

De nombreuses étiologies en particulier systémiques et rétinienne peuvent être à l'origine d'hémorragies rétinienne. Il est très important pour les médecins de différencier ces causes du traumatisme crânien infligé ; de connaître également les évaluations systémiques ainsi que les investigations complémentaires devant être pratiquées permettant la description des lésions, leur type, leur répartition, leur nombre et leur forme. Bien qu'il n'existe pas d'évidence rétinienne spécifique pathognomonique caractéristique de la maltraitance, dans le contexte d'évidences radiologiques et biologiques spécifiques, certains types et répartitions d'hémorragies cérébrales deviennent plus spécifiques du traumatisme crânien infligé alors que d'autres formes de rétinopathie rétinienne peuvent être non spécifiques ou dues à d'autres entités sans lien avec la maltraitance des enfants.

Sabine Maguire MBBCh, MRCP, FRCPCH, Senior Lecturer in Child Health, Cardiff University, School of Medicine (Cardiff, Wales, UK)

This talk will focus on 1) the evidence base behind the nature of spinal injury in physical abuse derived from a Core-info systematic review of the international scientific literature 1970-2013; 2) recommended radiological investigations to identify or exclude spinal injury; 3) a discussion around the proposed mechanisms of spinal injury.

Long-Term Outcome of Non-Accidental Head Injury

AMPHITHEATRE
Mathilde Chevignard, MD, PhD, Rehabilitation Department, Saint-Maurice Hospitals (Saint-Maurice, France)

This talk will focus on a review of studies that have reported long-term outcomes of children following non-accidental head injury, considering a range of domains: neurological outcome (including sensory-motor deficits and epilepsy), cognitive and behavioral outcome, as well as academic achievement, school and community integration and the amount of care, treatments still necessary over the long-term.

The talk will also consider predictors of those outcomes, in order to promote improved follow-up of children who sustained such injuries.

Cette intervention sera basée sur la revue de la littérature concernant le devenir à long terme des enfants ayant subi un traumatisme crânien infligé dans différents domaines : l'évolution neurologique (dont les déficits sensoriels et moteurs ainsi que l'épilepsie), l'évolution cognitive et comportementale de même que la réussite scolaire, intégration à l'école et dans la communauté à mettre en rapport avec l'importance des soins et des traitements encore nécessaires sur le long terme. Cette intervention abordera également les facteurs prédictifs de ces évolutions afin de favoriser un meilleur suivi des enfants victimes de tels traumatismes.

Built as a fortress under the rule of Philip II in the late 12th century, the Louvre's building itself is a work to be admired.

NOTRE DAME CATHEDRAL

Within 20 minutes of leaving the conference venue, you can find yourself scaling the towers of the famous cathedral. You'll get a close-up view of the Gothic art and massive bell (the Bourdon) that help make this landmark so famous.

VÉLIB'

Available 24 hours a day, Vélib' is a bike-sharing program that enables you to see the entire city of Paris by simply renting a bike from one of 1,800 bike stations located every 300 meters throughout the city.
